

Le Touquet Paris-Plage Press Coverage 20th-27th July 2020

GREAT BRITISH
Holidays
FROM JUST £15 PP*
SEE PAGE 56

*£15 per person based on four sharing. Booking fees apply. Multiple newspaper purchases required

PM's radical plan to beat obesity crisis

CALORIE LABELS ON ALCOHOL AND YOUR MEALS OUT

RESTAURANT and takeaway chains will be forced to publish the calories in every meal they serve.

Similar labels will also have to be placed on bottles and

EXCLUSIVE

By Jason Groves
Political Editor

cans of beer, wine and spirits sold in shops.

The move is part of an anti-obesity strategy ordered by Boris

Johnson following his near-fatal brush with coronavirus in April.

The Government is also expected to consult on plans to outlaw online advertising of junk food and restrict it on TV until after 9pm.

A ban on buy-one-get-one-free supermarket deals is part of the

Turn to Page 6

Police widow's agony as cheering killers celebrate

SEE PAGES 4-5

Daily Mail (Circulation: 1,132,908; Points: 6) 25th July 2020

(IMAGE 1 OF 3)

Escape: Trends

by TOM
CHÉSSHIRE

FANCY a day trip to Cornwall? Or how about afternoon tea on the Isle of Wight? Or perhaps a spot of lunch in the Channel Islands, or is northern France more your thing?

A niche website for flying enthusiasts — Wingly.co — reports a surge in interest from travellers keen to take to the skies in the comfort of a private plane or helicopter, avoiding the clamour and queues of major airports as well as traffic jams and people spluttering on trains.

And now social distancing rules have been relaxed, private flights with guest passengers are taking to the skies once again. Operating out of more than 500 airfields in the UK, Wingly puts 'hobby pilots' in touch with passengers who are asked to help share the cost of fuel and take-off/landing charges.

A return trip from London to Newquay in Cornwall, is from £166 per person with a total flying time of 2h 20m.

The cost-sharing system allows pilots to indulge in their passion for flying, while passengers enjoy exciting journeys to parts of the UK as well as Europe including France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Germany.

Among the more exotic options on offer is a day trip to Antwerp in Belgium from North Weald Airfield in Essex. The flight on a Diamond DA-42 Twin Star, four-seater, twin engine popper plane, costing £312 per person, crosses the North Sea before touching down at a small airfield. After sightseeing, the pilot arranges lunch at a 17th-century coaching house, before flying back.

TRIP to the beach at Le Touquet in the Pas-de-Calais department in northern France are also possible, with passengers recommended to book a table at one of the many house cuisine restaurants in the fashionable resort, also known as 'Paris by the Sea'. The price? £177 per person for a round-trip of 2h 25m, also from North Weald.

'People want to avoid waiting around in airports,' says Ahaad Adiji, UK country manager for Wingly, set up five years ago and based in Paris. 'They like being in small groups — that's the difference to travelling on a commercial airline.'

The company has 300,000 registered users including 20,000 pilots who have flown more than 15,000 flights in 45

Why high flyers are hopping on air taxis

It's a new way to travel without the hassle of an airport — and far cheaper than you might think countries since 2015. The cost-sharing platform has proved especially popular in France and Germany.

Most travellers have been those celebrating special occasions.

In anticipation of a large growth in those aiming to keep to themselves on trips, Wingly is also launching a commercial wing, called Wingly Pro. This will make it possible to order specific routes.

Matthew Aiello, 56, who has been flying planes since he was 21 and carried more than 100 passengers in the six months before lockdown using Cessnas out of Blackbushe Airport in Hampshire, says he is getting a lot of interest from people considering UK breaks, and northern France and skiing weekends in Courchevel in the French Alps. 'They want to avoid the big airports. It's been so much fun — I get to fly more and meet so many new people.'

Just looking at the trips on offer is enough to fire up a feeling of wanderlust: 'Attend for "weekend prices for lunch" (on a Cessna 441 single-engine five-seater), a day-trip to a country inn outside Chichester, West Sussex, (from Kent in a helicopter), and beer and currywurst in Berlin (after flying over on a three-seater Piper PA38R-201 Arrow III). Yes, please, or no bite.'

wingly.co

Wheels up: Enjoying a front row seat on a Wingly private charter plane

The skies are now open ...but is your travel insurance adequate?

British holidaymakers are once more able to take to the skies and visit countries — including Spain, Italy, Greece and many more.

During the pandemic, many insurers withdrew from the market completely or refused to cover customers for any claims related to the virus.

Staysure travel Insurance policies now give customers even better protection for COVID-19.

Their fantastic new cancellation cover is included with all new policies — at no extra cost! It means you can book that holiday you've had your eye on with the confidence that you'll be covered by the UK's Most Trusted Travel Insurance Provider.

Don't forget to check the current rules for the country you're visiting, as they may have restrictions linked to visitors.

The UK's Most Trusted Travel Insurance Provider!

We've added improved cancellation cover for COVID-19 to all of our policies, at no extra cost.

- ✓ £5,000 cancellation cover including COVID-19
- ✓ Contracting COVID-19 while abroad and needing medical treatment
- ✓ Cutting your trip short due to the death of a close relative from the virus

Staysure Worth doing right

Call our UK Contact Centres FREE
0800 088 4825
staysure.co.uk

*This cover only applies to policies purchased on or after 1st July 2020. It does not apply to existing policies. Please see our website for full details. Cancellation cover applies to policies booked 14 days before departure for Emergency Medical and Repatriation. If you're insured with a policy, Comprehensive policy benefits shown. Terms & Conditions apply.

Daily Mail (Circulation:
1,132,908; Points: 6) 25th
July 2020

(IMAGE 2 OF 3)

GRIFCO
AN MMOTGLOBAL COMPANY

TRIPS to the beach at Le Touquet in the Pas-de-Calais department in northern France are also possible, with passengers recommended to book a table at one of the many haute cuisine restaurants in the fashionable resort, also known as 'Paris by the Sea'. The price? £177 per person for a round-trip of 1h 25m, also from North Weald.

'People want to avoid waiting around in airports,' says Ahaad Adiji, UK country manager for Wingly, set up five years ago and based in Paris. 'They like being in small groups — that's the difference to travelling on a commercial airline.'

The company has 300,000 registered users including 20,000 pilots who have flown more than 15,000 flights in 45

countries since 2015. The cost-sharing platform has proved especially popular in France and Germany.

Most travellers have been those celebrating special occasions.

In anticipation of a large growth in those aiming to keep to themselves on trips, Wingly is also launching a commercial wing, called Wingly Pro. This

Daily Mail (Circulation: 1,132,908; Points: 6) 25th July 2020

(IMAGE 3 OF 3)

GREAT BRITISH
Holidays
FROM JUST £15 PP*
SEE PAGE 56

*£15 per person based on four sharing. Booking fee applies. Multiple newspaper purchases required.

COVID
cancellation
guarantee

A MILLION SCOTS HIT BOTTLE IN LOCKDOWN

Warning over 'staggering' rise in drinking

ONE million Scots drinkers admit they have hit the booze harder during lockdown, raising fears of a health 'time bomb'.

Figures show that 27 per cent of adult drinkers have relieved the boredom by sinking harmful amounts of alcohol.

According to researchers, around

By Annie Butterworth

half of those who admitted to drinking more said it was a way to handle stress or anxiety.

Doctors warn this heavy drinking will have a major impact on the health of the nation for years.

It comes as Boris Johnson yesterday launched a commitment to tackling Britain's obesity crisis by putting calorie counts on all alcohol bottles sold in shops. The plan is part of a new obesity strategy ordered by the Prime Minister following his near-fatal brush with coronavirus.

UK ministers are also expected to consult on controversial proposals to ban the online advertising of junk food and restrict it on TV until after the Open Watershed.

Scottish Conservative deputy leader Annie Wells said: 'Lockdown may only have lasted a few months

Turn to Page 2

Police widow's agony as cheering
killers celebrate

SEE PAGES 4-5

Scottish Daily Mail
(Circulation: 70,216; Points:
5) 25th July 2020

(IMAGE 1 OF 3)

Escape: Trends

by TOM
CHÉSSHIRE

FANCY a day trip to Cornwall? Or how about afternoon tea on the Isle of Wight? Or perhaps a spot of lunch in the Channel Islands, or is northern France more your thing?

A niche website for flying enthusiasts — Wingly.co.uk — reports a surge in interest from travellers keen to take to the skies in the comfort of a private plane or helicopter, avoiding the clamour and queues of major airports as well as traffic jams and people spluttering on trains.

And now social distancing rules have been relaxed, private flights with guest passengers are taking to the skies once again. Operating out of more than 500 airfields in the UK, Wingly puts 'hobby pilots' in touch with passengers who are asked to help share the cost of fuel and take-off/landing charges.

A return trip from London to Newquay in Cornwall, is from £155 per person with a total flying time of 2h 20m.

The cost-sharing system allows pilots to indulge in their passion for flying, while passengers enjoy exciting journeys to parts of the UK as well as Europe including France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Germany.

Among the more exotic options on offer is a day trip to Antwerp in Belgium from North Weald Airfield in Essex. The flight on a Diamond DA-42 Twin Star, four-seater, twin engine popper plane, costing £312 per person, crosses the North Sea before touching down at a small airfield. After sightseeing, the pilot arranges lunch at a 17th-century coaching house, before flying back.

TRIP to the beach at Le Touquet in the Pas-de-Calais department in northern France are also possible, with passengers recommended to book a table at one of the many house cuisine restaurants in the fashionable resort, also known as 'Paris by the Sea'. The price? £177 per person for a round-trip of 2h 25m, also from North Weald.

'People want to avoid waiting around in airports,' says Ahaad Adili, UK country manager for Wingly, set up five years ago and based in Paris. 'They like being in small groups — that's the difference to travelling on a commercial airline.'

The company has 300,000 registered users including 20,000 pilots who have flown more than 15,000 flights in 45

Why high flyers are hopping on air taxis

It's a new way to travel without the hassle of an airport — and far cheaper than you might think countries since 2015. The cost-sharing platform has proved especially popular in France and Germany.

Most travellers have been those celebrating special occasions.

In anticipation of a large growth in those aiming to keep to themselves on trips, Wingly is also launching a commercial wing, called Wingly Pro. This will make it possible to order specific routes.

Matthew Aiello, 56, who has been flying planes since he was 21 and carried more than 100 passengers in the six months before lockdown using Cessnas out of Blackbushe Airport in Hampshire, says he is getting a lot of interest from people considering UK breaks, northern France and skiing weekends in Courchevel in the French Alps. 'They want to avoid the big airports. It's been so much fun — I get

to fly more and meet so many new people.'

Just looking at the trips on offer is enough to fire up a feeling of wanderlust: 'Attend for "weekend prices for lunch" (on a Cessna 441 single-engine five-seater), a day-trip to a country inn outside Chichester, West Sussex, (from Kent in a helicopter), and beer and cunymust in Berlin (after flying over on a three-seater Piper PA38R-201 Arrow III). Yes, please, or no bite.'

Wingly.co.uk

Wheels up: Enjoying a front row seat on a Wingly private charter plane

Scottish Daily Mail
(Circulation: 70,216; Points:
5) 25th July 2020

(IMAGE 2 OF 3)

The skies are now open ...but is your travel insurance adequate?

British holidaymakers are once more able to take to the skies and visit countries — including Spain, Italy, Greece and many more.

During the pandemic, many insurers withdrew from the market completely or refused to cover customers for any claims related to the virus.

Staysure travel Insurance policies now give customers even better protection for COVID-19.

Their fantastic new cancellation cover is included with all new policies — at no extra cost! It means you can book that holiday you've had your eye on with the confidence that you'll be covered by the UK's Most Trusted Travel Insurance Provider.

Don't forget to check the current rules for the country you're visiting, as they may have restrictions linked to visitors.

The UK's Most Trusted Travel Insurance Provider!

We've added improved cancellation cover for COVID-19 to all of our policies, at no extra cost.

- ✓ £5,000 cancellation cover including COVID-19
- ✓ Contracting COVID-19 while abroad and needing medical treatment
- ✓ Cutting your trip short due to the death of a close relative from the virus

Staysure® Worth doing right

Call our UK Contact Centres FREE
0800 088 4825
staysure.co.uk

*This cover only applies to policies purchased on or after 1st July 2020. It does not apply to existing policies. Please see our website for full details. Cancellation cover applies to bookings made up to 14 days before departure for Standard and Premium policies. Comprehensive policy benefits shown. Terms & Conditions apply.

GRIFCO
AN MMOTGLOBAL COMPANY

TRIPS to the beach at Le Touquet in the Pas-de-Calais department in northern France are also possible, with passengers recommended to book a table at one of the many haute cuisine restaurants in the fashionable resort, also known as 'Paris by the Sea'. The price? £177 per person for a round-trip of 1h 25m, also from North Weald.

'People want to avoid waiting around in airports,' says Ahaad Adiji, UK country manager for Wingly, set up five years ago and based in Paris. 'They like being in small groups — that's the difference to travelling on a commercial airline.'

The company has 300,000 registered users including 20,000 pilots who have flown more than 15,000 flights in 45

countries since 2015. The cost-sharing platform has proved especially popular in France and Germany.

Most travellers have been those celebrating special occasions.

In anticipation of a large growth in those aiming to keep to themselves on trips, Wingly is also launching a commercial wing, called Wingly Pro. This

Scottish Daily Mail
(Circulation: 70,216; Points:
5) 25th July 2020

(IMAGE 3 OF 3)

Why high flyers are hopping on air taxis... it's a new way to travel without the hassle of an airport – and far cheaper than you might think

- Niche website Wingly.io has reported a surge in interest for private flights
- It puts 'hobby pilots' in touch with passengers who share the cost of fuel
- A return trip from London to Newquay in Cornwall is from £166 per person

By TOM CHESSHIRE FOR THE DAILY MAIL

PUBLISHED: 07:24 EDT, 25 July 2020 | UPDATED: 05:00 EDT, 26 July 2020

Fancy a day trip to Cornwall? Or how about afternoon tea on the Isle of Wight? Or perhaps a spot of lunch in the Channel Islands, or is northern France more your thing?

A niche website for flying enthusiasts —Wingly.io — reports a surge in interest from travellers keen to take to the skies in the comfort of a private plane or helicopter, avoiding the clamour and queues of major airports as well as traffic jams and people spluttering on trains.

And now social distancing rules have been relaxed, private flights with guest passengers are taking to the skies once again. Operating out of more than 500 airfields in the UK, Wingly puts 'hobby pilots' in touch with passengers who are asked to help share the cost of fuel and take-off/landing charges.

The Mail Online (UMV:
92,360,000; Points: 6) 25th
July 2020

(IMAGE 1 OF 2)

Trips to the beach at Le Touquet in the Pas-de-Calais department in northern France are also possible, with passengers recommended to book a table at one of the many haute cuisine restaurants in the fashionable resort, also known as 'Paris by the Sea'. The price? £177 per person for a round-trip of 1h 25m, also from North Weald.

'People want to avoid waiting around in airports,' says Ahaad Adiji, UK country manager for Wingly, set up five years ago and based in Paris. 'They like being in small groups — that's the difference to travelling on a commercial airline.'

The company has 300,000 registered users including 20,000 pilots who have flown more than 15,000 flights in 45 countries since 2015. The cost-sharing platform has proved especially popular in France and Germany. Most travellers have been those celebrating special occasions.

The Mail Online (UMV:
92,360,000; Points: 6) 25th
July 2020

(IMAGE 2 OF 2)